Inventis Limited [ASX: IVT] – Media Release

Inventis Gregory launches strategy for a safer and more productive work from home ergonomic environment.

Work from Home (WFH) is a paradigm shift in the workplace.

Greg Welsh, Furniture Division General Manager said today,

“Inventis and SafetyCulture are working together exclusively on Beta Testing for an exclusive iAuditor Work from Home (WFH) Safety and Risk audit process, that will automate and provide a comprehensive risk management process (including a Mental Health process through a major health support provider) for all of Gregory Chair’s major Corporate and Government clients”.

The growth in the WFH market provides an enormous opportunity for Gregory with its revolutionary G-Smart Chair technology, to help Corporates and Government manage workplace risks across their now million extra “workplaces” in Australia.

Anthony Mankarios, Group Managing Director said “he is honoured and pleased that the smart team from iAuditor app SafetyCulture has chosen to work with Gregory exclusively in this space to service Corporates and Government WFH staff. This new technology coupled with the G-Smart™ Smart Chair and mobile phone app without doubt creates a leading market position globally for Gregory and Safety Culture in WFH ergonomic safety”.
